

Reflection Paper

Seeing what I set out to do in A1 and what I accomplished in A3, shows me that I have learned quite a lot from this course although I did not add everything, I wanted to from my original outline the groundwork is still very much there. I believe that I will be able to adapt parts of this website and defiantly the knowledge I learned in making it to develop A much more comprehensive website that I could use for what I outlined in A1, which was a more personal use website with the ability to have some aspects adapted for use in possible job application. I do feel that I would have to create a new website for the latter, however the website works quite well for the former. There are some aspects of this website that I would have done much differently such as maybe having less pages, but each page would contain more content to give the website A more filled out feel instead of it looking mostly empty. Another aspect of this site that I wish I would have done differently would be that of putting more effort into the style and making it look more uniform with a better appreciation of the colour palette. With all that said, I believe that this class and the assignments ranging from A1 to A3 were beneficial towards my understanding of web design.

Logan Matheson

B00956775